THE DEMOCRATIC TICKET.

JAMES B. ALLENSWORTH.

The Democrats of Christian county have seldom, if ever, presented a stronger or more evenly balanced ticket for the support of the voters of the county, than the nominees for county officers in the present campaign. It can be said that every man is qualified for the special position he seeks, and there is not a man on the ticket who will not measure up to a rigid test of personal rectitude and official fitness. Heading the ticket a county judge is James B. Allensworth, who has for 25 years or more been a prominent member of the local bar and who is at the present time a member of one of the leading law firms of the city and district. The man who can present such a man for an office with as little pay as county judge is indeed fortunate. Experience is demonstrated that this office, while the salary is inadequate, is one of vast importance. It is a judicial position and not merely a clerical position that any office seeker can fill. Legal questions arise in every day's transactions and a knowledge of the law is absolutely essential to make a good officer. A bookkeeper may keep books, a carpenter build a house and a chauffeur may run a car, but it does not follow that such training would qualify them to practice law or medicine. The county's judicial affairs should be in the hands of a judge and its clerical affairs should be entrusted to a man with training for such work, and its legal affairs should be handled by a qualified and experienced lawyer. All of these requirements have been met in the ticket headed by Judge Allensworth. His own fitness for county judge is admitted even by his political enemies—and he has no other sort. No one questions his ability as a lawyer, his experience and his aptitude for such work. He is courteous, patient and agreeable, qualities that count for much in an office filled with petty annoyances and exacting details in dealing with a public hard to please.

The Democratic party has never presented any candidate for this office who was not a good lawyer. Neither party has presented any man for this judicial office for 25 or 30 years who was not a lawyer. In fact no man has filled this office for a generation who was not at least trained in legal matters and official business. The people are acting independently of party on many matters these days. Even a Democratic President appoints Republicans to high offices if they suit his purposes better than men of his own party. It is not wisely that the people of Christian county, of any party or of all parties, shut their eyes to the importance of choosing the best officials available to handle their county business. They have ceased to be blind partisans in the last two or three contests and we believe they are ready to pursue the same course this year.

Republicans elected Wilson President and many a Republican vote is going to be cast for the Democratic ticket this year, because it offers qualified men for the places they seek.

There is new talk of peace after the drive made by Haig, Petain or Adorna.

Camp Taylor's population shows 30,123 drafted men. An order has been issued for a census of illiterates in the camp.

To permit an early decision, the Supreme Court has advanced appeals involving constitutionality of the draft law and fixed December 10 for hearing arguments.

RAINBOW NEGRO DIVISION

Under New Plan White National Army Divisions Are Grouped Geographically.

Washington, Oct. 10.—Orders issued today to commanders of national army cantonments disclose for the first time the War Department's complete plans for the training and organization of the first million of the national army.

Shortage of men in the three National Guard divisions in the South, Thirtieth, the Thirty-first and the Thirty-ninth, coupled with a decision to form a new national army division of negro troops, has made necessary a readjustment of the forces at fifteen of the sixteen cantonments.

The force of 500,000 men will be organized into sixteen white divisions and one colored division. One white division will be organized at each of the sixteen national cantonments and the units of the colored division will be organized at the various cantonments where the number of colored troops is sufficient to organize a divisional unit.

Instead of concentrating all of the colored men in the few cantonments of the Southern states, the policy of the war department will be to distribute them more or less evenly throughout all of the sixteen national army cantonments.

The new plan adds a division to the national army organization making seventeen divisions in that force to supplement the seventeen National Guard divisions. The negro division will probably be designated the Ninety-second division, national army. It will be mobilized as a division only when ordered to France for duty. The force will be the largest fighting unit of negro troops in the army and the majority of its officers will come from the negro officers' training camp at Des Moines, Iowa.

The division will take in nearly 30,000 of the 83,000 negroes registered under the draft law.

There will be organized in addition, however, service units for work behind the lines. Orders were published today, authorizing twenty-four of these to be raised by voluntary transfer of drafted men or voluntary enlistment from civil life. It has been stated that 250,000 men must be sent abroad for this purpose.

Supplementing General Bliss' explanation, the department issued a summary of orders governing the allotment of quotas of negro drafted men to the cantonments. With the exception of Camps Jackson, Gordon, Pike and Travis, each cantonment will accommodate all of the negro quotas from the states from which its white troops are drawn.

At Camp Pike, after the consolidation of the Southern drafted men, surplus white men from Camp Zachary Taylor, Louisville, and other camps will be mobilized to form a supplemental middle western division of the national army.

Produces Many Soldiers.

Charlottesville, Va.—The University of Virginia has sent approximately 15 per cent of its alumni and students in various branches of war service. Lewis D. Crenshaw, general alumni secretary, says that according to his records this is a conservative estimate and that when final reports are obtained will probably be much greater. Those already on file are distributed as follows: Medical Officers, Reserve Corps, 250; Reserve Officers' training camp, 244; base hospital, 150; United States Ambulance Corps, 96; regular army, 36; navy, 20; aviation, 18; coast patrol, 14; industrial and munition works, 13; marines, 8; English army, 2; miscellaneous, 81.

OVERSUBSCRIBE TO TAKE PRIZES AT HOSPITAL FUND ARGENTINE SHOW

Louisville Churches Give $6,000 More Than Their Share.

Louisville, Oct. 10.—The canvassers from the various Baptist churches in the city met at Klein's last night for a dinner and a report from the workers. Representatives from the six churches were not present. After the reports had been read and the total given, it was discovered that the sum of $35,000, which had been assigned to the Baptists of Louisville as their share of the $250,000 Baptist State Hospital Fund, had been oversubscribed by more than $6,000. A total of $41,210 was reported last night, with six teams yet to report. It is thought when the last returns are in, the fund will be oversubscribed more than $10,000.

The canvass for the remainder of the sum throughout the State will begin immediately following the next meeting of the General Association of Baptists in Kentucky, which will be held in Paducah, Nov. 12.

BRIGHT'S DISEASE CAUSES DEATH

Walter Gregory Succumbs After an Illness of Many Months.

Walter Gregory, a popular young citizen of the Howell neighborhood, died Monday night at the home of his uncle, I. J. Gregory, after an illness of long duration of Bright's disease. He was about 30 years old and a son of the late Andrew J. Gregory. The deceased was a member of the Methodist church. Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at the Methodist church at Herndon and the interment took place in the Reeves burying ground.

Will Can Rabbits.

Evansville, Ind., Oct. 10.—The W. H. Dyer Company, operating canning factories in Evansville and Owensboro, Ky., has decided to can rabbits as a war measure and to help reduce the high cost of living. Rabbits have not been canned previously and Evansville will be the pioneer in this field. The country surrounding Evansville will produce an abundance of rabbits for canning, it is believed. Business men in the Green River territory in Western Kentucky have agreed to furnish from 50,000 to 60,000 rabbits yearly.

Handsome Trophy Captured by Hereford Bulls Bred by Col. E. H. Taylor, Jr.

Frankfort, Ky., Oct. 10.—Winning of the $500 silver Argentine trophy by three Hereford bulls, bred and owned by Col. E. H. Taylor, Jr., of Frankfort, proclaims Kentucky as the home of the Hereford, in the opinion of Commissioner of Agriculture Mat S. Cohen who has returned from the American Royal Cattle Show at Kansas City.

Speaking of Col. Taylor's showing from his Woodford county herd, Commissioner Cohen said he took practically every award, besides capturing the Argentine prize.

The prize was offered for the first time in America to attract attention of breeders to the Argentine market, where ranchmen are seeking to improve their breed.

Col. Taylor refused $25,000 at Kansas City for an 18-months-old bull, and three of his bulls took the Argentine prize, because instead of getting rid of his best stock to competitors, he is keeping it to maintain the superiority of his own herd.

The winning of the Argentine prize opens the Argentine market for the Kentucky stock, while the inroads of war conditions in England have permanently transferred supremacy in high-class breeding of cattle to this country.

COAL SCARCE ARTICLE NOW

Owing to Confiscations For Railroad Purposes.

As reported in Tuesday's Kentuckian, the L. & N. Railroad has been seizing coal shipments on its lines to supply shortages in Eastern Kentucky, and Hopkinsville is very short of coal. Only one day this week has any coal come to local agents over the L. & N. and it was grabbed up quickly. The dealers are trying to distribute the little they get until things become normal. It is promised that this will be by Friday, when the coal from the mines recently closed by strikes will again ease things up in Eastern Kentucky and make further seizures unnecessary.

A. M. Coleman was painfully injured Tuesday afternoon, when a bale of shingles fell on him. One foot was mashed, one leg was badly bruised and his back was also hurt.

FULL U. S. FOOD CONTROL NOV. 5

Wilson Orders Makers and Distributors of 20 Fundamentals Be Licensed.

UNCLE SAM DETERMINED

Administrators Have Planned Safeguards for America's Pantry.

Washington, Oct. 10.—Virtually all the staple foods consumed by the American people will be put under government control November 1.

The food administration announced that within a few days President Wilson will issue an executive order requiring that manufacturers and distributors of some twenty fundamental foods operate under license restriction designed to prevent unreasonable profits and to stop speculation and hoarding.

Regulations will be prescribed for meat packers, cold storage houses, millers, canner, elevators, grain dealers and retailers doing a business of more than $190,000 annually in the commodities to be named.

GIRLS OF THE HIGH SCHOOL

Catch Enthusiasm and Organize Two Companies For Navy League Work.

Twenty girls are now in Co. B, of the Hopkinsville High School and the company meets on Friday. Last Friday they did splendid work, making 61 compresses for the Navy League. The girls are enthusiastic. Tomorrow they will organize with a captain and two assistants and will be ready for the winter's work as rivals of Co. A, which meets on Wednesday afternoons. Both companies are doing excellent work.

Good cheer Christmas bags for the soldiers have been made by the girls, who volunteered at the beginning of school. They made 46 bags of khaki cloth and filled them with gifts for the men in the trenches, tobacco, pipes, cigarettes, drinking cups, handkerchiefs, Bibles, card decks, games of all kinds, candy, bouillon cups, etc. Every bag contained ten articles, each of which was wrapped in tissue paper and sealed with Christmas seals. The box was sent Oct. 5 in order to reach the soldiers in France by Dec. 25.

KING SALE.

Satisfactory Prices Realized For Property Sold.

The sale of the personal property of Mrs. Belle H. King, near Casky, was held Tuesday and nearly everything brought satisfactory prices.

Corn in the field brought $5.15 a barrel. Live stock sold high, one hog bringing $75. Mrs. King has sold her farm and will move to town about December 1st. Mr. Ira Rhea, who bought the farm, has built a silo, and will put in a wheat crop at once and will get full possession when Mrs. King vacates.

On motion of the commonwealth, the trial of Mack Logan and Frank Tribble, charged with the murder of officer Keach at Dawson Springs, was continued until the 13th day of the February term of the Hopkins circuit court, when the case was called at Madisonville Monday.

John Fisse, an old bachelor of 80 at Kokomo, Ind., has just married a young widow of 39. The bride evidently wanted one this time who wouldn't be drafted.

ANOTHER GAIN IN FLANDERS

And Hard Pressed Huns are Given No Rest by the Onslaughting Allies.

FRENCH TAKE 2 VILLAGES

Only One Place Could Teutons Temporarily Halt Victorious Britons.

The big fight is on again in Flanders, and the Germans are being hammered hard. Field Marshal Haig is battering away on the sectors east and northeast of Ypres, while French troops have joined with the British left wing to the south of Dixmude in an endeavor to bring that section of the line even with the sharp wedge that has been driven into the German front by Haig east of Broodseinde.

Launching their attacks simultaneously Tuesday morning both armies had made considerable gains before night, in addition to inflicting heavy casualties on the Germans and taking many prisoners. Prior to the announcement of the commencement of the attack there had been an intimation that the Frenchmen were ready for an advance.

With apparent ease the French crossed the flooded Broenbeek and Jansbeek rivers and captured the villages of St. Jean De Mangelare and Veldhoek, together with numerous block houses and took prisoners several hundred Germans. The advance of the French was over a front of a mile and a half, and they penetrated the German line to a depth of one and a quarter miles.

Haig's principal offensive centered on the parts of the ridge still held by Germans, being directed eastward to Poelcapelle, which was captured, and northeastward from Broodseinde toward Passchendale, the ultimate objective being the Ostend-Lille road. Taken as a whole, the joint operation makes more apparent the crowning desire of the allies in this region—the forcing back of the Germans to points where their evacuation of Ostend and Zeebrugge, naval and submarine bases on the North sea, will become necessary.

At several points Haig's advance was sharply contested by the Germans, particularly north of Broodseinde, the nearest approach to the railroad line and near the Polderhoek chateau.

Nowhere, however, were the Germans able to stop the advance except near the Polderhoek chateau, where the terrific fire of their machine guns gave a momentary pause to the British and forced them to give ground. Later the attacking troops reformed and the successful push went on again.

Aside from Flanders, the operations in all the various theaters of the war are of a minor character. Along the Aisne and Champagne fronts and on the left bank of the Meuse, and on the Verdun sector, intensive artillery duels are still in progress between the French and Germans. In Champagne the French have carried out a successful raid near the Butte of Tahure and taken prisoners.

There is still considerable infantry and artillery activity between the Russians and Germans in the Riga sector of the Russian front, but neither side has made any attempt at an advance.

Reciprocal bombardments are in progress between the Italians and Austrians on the Austro-Italian front and between the entente forces and the Teutonic allies in Macedonia.

Another Austro-German peace offer, which is to be based on the principles of no territorial aggrandizement, the surrender of Belgian and French territory, the renunciation of territorial acquisitions for money payments and no indemnity by either side, is soon to be put forward, according to a prominent Berlin newspaper.

Equador has served notice on Dr. Perl, Peru's German minister ordered home, that he will not be officially received if he comes to Equador.

The British steamer Tamaqua, reported to have been sunk off the Irish coast on Sept. 29, by a submarine, arrived safe in port Monday.

The political factions in Russia have at last come into agreement on points which have been in dispute between them and the government over the forming of a cabinet, and it is announced that a coalition government will be immediately instituted. The country, however, is now threatened with a general railway strike, which was partly put into effect at midnight Sunday, notwithstanding a threat that the men taking a part in it would be charged with treason.

Premier Bozzani at the convening of the Italian parliament Oct. 16 is expected to give notice of a new drive by Gen. Cardona's troops, even more important than the progress over the Bainsizza plateau, which is expected to have far reaching results towards accentuating the Hungarian agitation for a separate peace. Brass bands and spiels with megaphones no doubt will also be sent ahead of the soldiers to announce their coming and to give the Austrians a chance to make some show of resistance. Bozzani is evidently the Italian for Bonehead.

A report recommending government operation of the print paper and the pulp industries during the war and arraigning what it calls the defiant attitude of present paper producers was filed by the senate printing committee. The committee report points out that as a result of the commission's investigations seven leading news print manufacturers have been indicted for violating the Sherman anti-trust law and the commission has entered formal complaint against the book paper manufacturers' bureau of statistics and twenty-three member companies of that bureau, but that up to this time neither the indictments nor the complaints have afforded any measure of protection to the publication.

COULD STAMP OUT LEPROSY

Investigator of Opinion That Disease Might Be Eliminated From Japan at Small Cost.

Japan has done much to fight the ravages of leprosy, but plans to do much more in the way of furnishing hospitals for lepers. Leprosy for a long time has been considered hereditary by the Japanese, leading often to the rupture of marriage engagements, to divorces, and also to the complete disappearance from society of the afflicted man or woman. Doctor Koda, who is conducting an investigation declares that of 942 patients examined by him, only 255, or 27 per cent, have fellow sufferers in their own family. He believes that the disease is not hereditary in the sense that insanity is hereditary. It cannot, he says, skip a generation and appear in the grandchildren. He considers the shunning and isolation of leprosy families unnecessary. Only the individual patients must be segregated, he believes. In Japan there are 23,800 lepers registered, but the families involved aggregate 990,000 persons. About 1,000 persons are now segregated. Doctor Koda declares it would cost only the price of a new battleship to inaugurate a thorough isolation policy, and thinks that in this way the disease could be stamped out, at least as a family curse, within twenty years.

HAVE NO RIGHT TO NAME

Poland-China Hogs Allowed to Retain Cognomen Because They Had Been Long So Called.

The Poland-China hog originated in Butler and Warren counties, O. In 1816 the Society of Shakers in Warren county, brought some breeding hogs from Philadelphia. Some of them were pure white and others white, with black spots. They were represented to the Shakers as of pure Chinese blood and were called Big Chinas. The descendants of these hogs were widely distributed in Warren and Butler counties and were known by different names, among others as Poland-Chinas, because it was said they had been crossed with a Poland breed. They were also called Magees. In 1872 a committee which had been appointed to investigate the origin of the breed reported its findings to the National Swine Breeders' congress. This committee reported against the theory that the Chinas had been crossed with Polands, but as the name Poland-China had been adopted and was in general use, the committee advised that it be retained, and it was. The name Magee never represented a rival breed of hogs, but was one of the names by which the Poland-Chinas were sometimes called. The Ohio Poland-China Record was organized in 1877, the Central Poland-China association in 1880, and in 1906 these two associations amalgamated as the National Poland-China Record Company.

"Who the blazes wants to get out of army?" shot back the fiery Frasca. "Ah wants to get one of them papers that jest makes mah ole man support mah wife and kid while ah go fight."

The doctor tried to keep a straight face, but told him he didn't have any of "those papers" on hand.—Philadelphia Ledger.

A NERVOUS WRECK

From Three Years' Suffering. Says Cardui Made Her Well.

Texas City, Tex.—In an interesting statement, Mrs. G. H. Schill, of this town, says: "For three years I suffered untold agony with my head. I was unable to do any of my work."

I just wanted to sleep all the time, for that was the only ease I could get, when I was asleep. I became a nervous wreck just from the awful suffering with my head.

I was so nervous that the least noise would make me jump out of my bed. I had no energy, and was unable to do anything. My son, a young boy, had to do all my household duties.

I was not able to do anything until I took Cardui. I took three bottles in all, and it surely cured me of those awful headaches. That has been three years ago, and I know the cure is permanent, for I have never had any headache since taking Cardui.

Nothing relieved me until I took Cardui. It did wonders for me."

Try Cardui for your troubles—made from medicinal ingredients recommended in medical books as being of benefit in female troubles, and 40 years of use has proven that the books are right. Begin taking Cardui today.

RICH MISS HEN.

"Cock-a-doodle-do," shouted Mr. Rooster.

"Cluck, cluck, cluck," said Miss Hen. "Cock-a-doodle-do," crowed Grandfather Red Top Rooster.

Such a noise as there was in the barnyard and all because a great many automobiles had gone by. Mr. Rooster was the first to complain.

"Once," he said, "my great-grandfather objected to these automobiles because he said that their honk-honk was noticed far more than his fine crowing."

"To be sure it would be, too," said Miss Hen, who was rather nervous. "Poor great-grandfather might have been run over and killed by one and there is always that awful chance that an automobile might."

"You are so nervous," said Mr. Rooster. "But the reason my great-grandfather minded it so much was because he said he felt it was taking attention away from him which he thought he deserved."

"I see," said Miss Hen. "Still I can't help noticing an automobile myself. It's so noisy and it's more unusual than crowing."

"I am not so sure about that," said Grandfather Red Top Rooster. "I really believe that a rooster is more of a treat these days than an automobile. Think of the numbers that go by one after the other, day after day. And each year there are more."

"You know," said Miss Hen, who was really very vain and tried to put on many airs, "I thought of getting one myself."

"You were going to get an automobile?" asked Mr. Rooster, who was the first one able to speak. "And pray tell, how could you have done such a thing? Who would have run it for you?"

"I Would Have Gone About the Countryside."

Where would you have gone? How could you have paid for it? They say they cost a great deal of real money."

"Ah," said Miss Hen, "you all think I am very foolish, but I am not. No, indeed, I am not foolish at all. I am very sensible. I know what I am talking about. I could have had an automobile if I wanted. I know how to do things. I have an excellent business head for a hen."

The other creatures looked at Miss Hen in surprise. She had always been so fond of putting on airs, they thought this was one too. Yet they couldn't understand how Miss Hen could say such things if she didn't mean some of them.

"You have asked me a great many questions," said Miss Hen. "I cannot answer them all at the same time. But I will answer each one separately. And she cleared her throat."

"First of all," she said, "comes the question, how I could have done such a thing. I would have bought the automobile with money I can earn and earn easily too. There! The first answer!" Miss Hen chuckled delightedly.

Every creature in the barnyard was looking at her. It made her feel very important.

"The second question, who would have run it for me. Well, ladies run their own automobiles. Hens could run their own. I would have had one made my size—they make them all sizes you know—and it would have just fitted me."

"The third question asking me where I would have gone can easily be answered by saying that I would have gone about the countryside, selling eggs to different farmers, wherever I could have made the most money. That is the main thing with automobile owners. It costs so much to keep them going. They say when they stop to mend a tire here that I would need to make as much money as I could."

"And there is my answer to your fourth question. I would have made the money to pay for it by selling eggs. They go up in price all the time. I could have had an automobile. I am no longer a poor hen to be despised and to be tooted, tooted at by other folks' horns. No, I am a hen, a great and useful hen. A money-making hen. An egg-selling hen."

The other creatures stared at her in wonder and admiration. "But why didn't you buy one?" asked Grandfather Red Top Rooster, after a long pause.

"Because," said Miss Hen, "they are too common. I didn't want to spend my summer doing nothing but stirring up dust!"

"Sweet Smelling Nails."

According to Sir George Watt, the name "clove" denotes its resemblance to a nail (clavus). There seems no doubt, he says, that the Chinese procured the clove from its island home, the Moluccas, or Spice Islands, for several centuries before it reached Europe; there are records that point to this traffic as early as 260 B. C. The clove was not regarded by the inhabitants of the Spice Islands as of any value until the Chinese desired to be supplied with "little sweet-smelling nails." In that circumstance alone lay the interest taken by the people of the Moluccas in the plant, and "nail" or "clove" became its name in most countries.

READJUSTMENT

By ALICE WEBBER.

Ann Morgan was trying to get hold of herself and finding it the hardest proposition she had ever attempted. It was a struggle to reach out for common sense after the blind unreason of affection, and there was nothing to help except the newness of the life about her. It was as if she had gone back to the very beginning of things. In a way she had. She and her father were living outside a French village in a weather-beaten house across the border from New Brunswick, with a cook stove, two beds, a rough table and a couple of chairs. Her father was like a boy in this environment and did the cooking, while Ann made a determined effort to find a glimmer of light, otherwise called sanity, in the darkness that encompassed her.

When she reached St. Attgat, during the early days of June, she had been too indifferent to care for the quaintness of her surroundings. Her father had been alarmed about her health, and the family physician, unable to discover cause for her illness, had sent her where he knew the air was sweet and pure.

As she sat listless under the shadow of a sugar maple, Ann thought of his words. She had honestly tried to bring herself into touch with the life about her, but health was as far too far away for her to have any other feeling than one of indifference.

Her life was primitive in the extreme. She was miles from a railroad and the mail came but once a month. She and her father were dependent upon a neighbor, Mr. Chandler, for that and he had brought it for the first time that evening. There were no letters. She had expected none, but the longing of the spirit cannot always be subjected to pride and there were times, like the present, when it seemed as if nothing mattered but the sight of the man she cared for. And she had given him up. The cruelty of it was that she had learned she was but the means to an end, had stumbled upon the knowledge within a week of her wedding day.

In the Corcoran art gallery she had paused beside the entrance to one of the rooms when the murmur of voices caught and held her attention.

"No, I do not love her," she heard. "Fortunately I am interested in no other woman, else it might go hard with me. Her father is wealthy. She is rich in her own right and I will be able to gratify ambitions hitherto merely dreams." As he finished speaking two men came face to face with Ann and she looked directly into the eyes of the man she had expected to marry.

Pride came to her aid in her effort to adjust herself to her new outlook upon life, but in the end she was bundled off to St. Attgat, and here she met Mr. Chandler, with whom her father found congenial companionship. He had a way of watching her that was disconcerting, and this, in time, made her conscious she was not good to look at. She became oversensitive about her lack of color and one day rummaged through her trunk for her vanity box and was chagrined not to find it.

This incident marked a change. Imperceptibly the outdoor life was making a difference in Ann. She took long walks and would stroll off for hours alone. One evening she did not return. Chandler, with her father, found her on the edge of the river with a twisted ankle and dislocated shoulder. She had slipped from the rock where she had been fishing, she told them later.

When they discovered her Mr. Morgan promptly went to pieces. She was all he had, and if anything happened to her he was of no more use than a baby. Mr. Chandler carried her home with about as much feeling as if she had been a bundle of rags, she thought, at the moment when a glimmer of reason made her try to remember that she was still a human being.

Just the merest jingle, but it sent needles of flame all over her, and she knew nothing more until she was on her bed with the two bending over her.

Between them she was made comfortable; yet she was not comfortable in her mind. She could not understand the odd look in Mr. Chandler's eyes when she had first opened her eyes, and now, after a month of inactivity, she was still puzzled. She had not seen it since. He gave her understanding and pleasant friendship, but that was all.

And she had begun to care. The thought troubled her. Was she lacking in constancy that she could so soon forget one man for another? But as she looked back upon those feverish days, she told herself she had been in love with love. That, she knew, was not the real thing, and she had discovered this, here in the midst of nature, had learned to distinguish between the false and the true, and with all her heart she prayed that the thing that makes life perfect would come to her.

And it came unexpectedly, as so often happens. She was alone, trying for the first time to walk about the house, clinging to whatever offered support, when she heard footsteps. Turning hastily, she saw Mr. Chandler standing in the doorway with arms outstretched. He said no word and she did not speak, but with shining eyes and heightened color she limped straight into them and hid her face against his coat sleeve.

NO FAILURES WITHOUT EFFORT

Every One Is a Step to Success.

INSTINCT AND EXPERIENCE.

Sometimes a Noble Failure Serves the World as Faithfully as a Distinguished Success—Lack of Capital and Patronage—Farmers Frequently Fail. He Who Makes No Effort Exempts.

[Copyrighted, 1914, by Thomas J. Sullivan.]
He only is exempt from failure who makes no effort.

In the lexicon of youth, which fate reserves for a bright manhood, there is no such word as fail—it comes later in life.

There are so many reasons which can logically and truthfully be advanced as causes contributing to the numerous failures that I will endeavor to analyze only the principal ones—the business failures.

Every failure is a step to success; every detection of what is false directs us to what is true; every trial exhausts some tempting form of error. Not only so, but scarcely any attempt is entirely a failure; scarcely any theory, the result of steady thought, is altogether false. No tempting form of error is without some latent charm derived from truth.

Failure is, in a sense, the highway to accomplishment, inasmuch as every discovery of what is false leads us to seek earnestly after what is true, and every fresh experience points out some form of error which we shall afterward carefully avoid.

In this article we have not the space to treat of individual cases or their many causes, but will deal altogether with the commercial side of the question—the business failures.

Perhaps the most general and common cause is lack of capital. Many men venture into business with just enough money to "swing" the enterprise for a month, at the end of which time they expect the new business to be self supporting. It seldom is, and as the concern becomes a financial cripple the inevitable is sure to happen—failure.

Business Instinct Required.
It may be said in passing that combined with the first form of failure there are two others, lack of business instinct and business experience.

Poor Man's Household Goods.
"The man of high descent may love the halls and lands of his inheritance as a part of himself, as trophies of his birth and power; the poor man's attachment to the tenement he holds, which strangers have held before and may tomorrow occupy again, has a worthier root, struck down into a purer soil. His household goods are of flesh and blood, with no alloy of silver, gold or precious stones."—Charles Dickens.

CITY TAXES

Under Section 3400 of the Kentucky Statutes, interest at the rate of eight per centum per annum is now being added to all unpaid city taxes. This interest has been running since October 1, 1917, on taxes for the year 1917, and if said taxes are paid now very little interest will have to be paid. On all city taxes for the year 1917, which remain unpaid on the first day of December, 1917, an additional penalty of 6 per centum will be added.

The city officials have no desire to inflict the payment of interest and penalties on the tax payers, but the law makes it my duty to collect the interest and penalty above mentioned if taxes are not paid before the dates on which said interest and penalty, under the law, are added.

Persons, firms and corporations who have not paid their city taxes are requested to settle same now and thereby escape the payment of future interest and penalty.

This October 8th, 1917.
W. R. WICKS,
Commissioner of Finance City of Hopkinsville, Ky.

The cat was domesticated among the Egyptians at least 1,300 years before Christ, and it was dignified by them with a titular deity. Since then it has appeared in all parts of the world as a pet. During the middle ages a sinister influence was attributed to the animal. Many persons believed cats to be the reincarnation of evil spirits. Modern science gives it an equally bad character, though of a different sort, and says that the cat must go.

October Bargain Club.
An opportunity is presented our readers this month to secure The Evansville Courier daily for one year and The Kentuckian tri-weekly one year at the bargain rate of $5.50. The regular price for both papers is $7.

It is expected that hundreds of people will take advantage of this chance to get their favorite city daily and home tri-weekly at a moderate price. If your subscription does not expire until later, your time will be extended one year. This low rate is made, however, only in the month of October.

Timiskaming.
The name Timiskaming is from the word Timikaming of the Nipissing Indians, the intrusive letter "s" being due to Canadian French. It is derived from timiw, "it is deep," and gaming, "in the water," meaning in "the deep water." It is the name of the lake lying between northwestern Quebec and northwestern Ontario, and through it flows the Ottawa river. Near its western shore is the Cognit district, famous for its rich silver mines. In places the waters of the lake are very deep, as the Indians evidently knew, for they gave it a name that means "in the deep water." A band of Algonquin Indians, known as the Timiskaming, and closely related to the Abitibi, once lived on the shore of the lake.

Looking Forward.

To refuse to be satisfied with one's accomplishments, however well a work has been done, or however much it is praised, is essential for real progress. When a noted astronomer modestly explained his triumph by saying, "It is because from the time I was a boy, no matter what I had to do, I tried to do it a little better than it had been done before," he suggested a worthy purpose for everyone. For such an ideal is always looking forward; the famous man considered not so much what others had done as what he, with the benefit of others' experience, could do. And when he had done well, he thought not of his past successes but of his future possibilities.

"Busted Out Again."

The late Father Benson had the habit of preaching long sermons. On one occasion, after a 50 minutes' discourse, he went to the altar to give the blessing, when he remembered there was a notice he had been asked to announce. He turned back to do so. "Bless me," grumbled the verger, "if he ain't busted out again!"

Artificial Leg Made 300 B. C.

There is in the museum of the Royal College of Surgeons, Lincoln's Inn Fields, London, an artificial leg, made about 300 B. C., of bronze, wood and iron. Who has not heard of the famous "Iron Hand" made in Nuremberg, Germany, in 1504, for the German knight, Gots von Berlichingen? Among the old-time Indians ears, noses and lips of plaster were quite common, one of their ordinary punishments being to cut off these useful parts of the human anatomy. Greek and Roman veterans who had lost a leg or an arm in the wars used to replace them by substitutes, and Plinius speaks of a Roman soldier who—about 160 years B. C.—was famous for the wooden hand with which he was still able to fight as an able swordsman. In 1604 the Duke of Brunswick had to use an artificial hand.

This Beats Potato Race.

Cutting Wisdom Teeth.

A Berlin dispatch quotes George Gothiene, a progressive member of the reichstag, as saying at a council meeting of his party, that there is no hope of crushing Germany's enemies on land and "America cannot be forced to make peace, cannot be forced to pay an indemnity, so only England remains. But should we, in order to obtain an indemnity of 10,000,000,000 marks, sacrifice 50,000,000,000 marks and another half million men."

A Letter From Washington

The Food Administrator Writes Us:

"The use of baking powder breads made of corn and other coarse flours instead of patent wheat flour is recommended by the Conservation Division of the Food Administration. The wheat needed for export is thus conserved, and at the same time healthful food for our own people is provided. The circulation of recipes providing for these uses would be of assistance in carrying out our plans."

The following recipes for Corn Bread and Rye Rolls save wheat flour and make attractive and wholesome food for every day when made with

BIG DRIVE TO WIN FOOD-SAVING PLEDGES IS ON IN KENTUCKY

Church and School, Clubs and Newspapers Busy Themselves To Make State Campaign Success and Splendid Aid Given in Telling Those Who must Remain At Home How They Can Help Win War.

"Food Will Win the War"—this is the battle cry!

"Serve by Saving"—this is the slogan of every patriotic American woman, eager to do her bit in order that husband or son, father or brother engaged in the mighty task of making the world safe for democracy may not be hampered through food privation in their glorious undertaking!

The great drive is under way, and according to Fred M. Sackett, Federal Food Administrator for Kentucky, advice from Washington is to the effect that the vast majority of the 22,000,000 families in the United States will volunteer to co-operate with the Food Administration in the saving of food in order that our army and the armies of our allies will be fed and the great war won. There is ample evidence at hand, Mr. Sackett says, that to convince him that Kentucky will splendidly account for herself in the number of pledges obtained.

To date between 78 and 80 counties in the State have been organized. Churches, schools, community leagues and newspapers are rendering invaluable service assisting in every possible way government officials whose duty it is to impress upon the American people the importance of eliminating wastage in the distribution and consumption of food stocks. Capt. W. E. Morrow, of Louisville, in charge of the campaign to obtain pledges as directed by the State Food Administrator, says he is confident with the showing made up to this time that by next week every county in the State will be organized and workers appointed to conduct the house-to-house canvass for pledges during the week beginning Oct. 21.

Morgan O. Hughes, of Bowling Green, is another worker who is optimistic regarding the campaign in Kentucky. He is a member of the State Council for National defense and as soil expert for the government is known to the farmers from one end of the State to the other. He declares the co-operation of all classes of citizens in the food-saving campaign is imperative if this country is to smash Kaiserism a blow from which the German autocrats will never recover. "All of us must rally to this cause," he says, "and not delay. Conservation of the food supply is the all-important thing. And when we say 'Food will win the war,' we are not overstating the case. It behooves all of us, therefore to save every ounce of food we can and spread the 'gospel of the clean plate' far and near."

Miss Lida E. Gardner, State organizer of Community Leagues and Parent-Teacher Association has sent out letters to 325 school trustees, teachers and heads of the parent-teacher bodies in an effort to mobilize the resources of all the community leagues in Kentucky for the purpose of furthering the campaign to eliminate waste. V. O. Gilbert, State Supt. of Schools, has written to County Supts. requesting them to have teachers impress upon their pupils the importance of food-saving at this time and through them to reach the parents. The children will be urged to request their mothers to sign the pledge cards and to repeat the request daily during the week of the campaign.

Mr. Sackett is especially gratified over the responses received from the secretaries of the various Chambers of Commerce from the State, notably those at Louisville, Covington, Lexington, Newport, Henderson, Paducah, Owensboro and other of the larger Kentucky cities. The business men have indicated their intention to lend all possible assistance in making the campaign a success. Numerous county agents, county home demonstration agents, district home demonstration agents and emergency agents have pledged their hearty co-operation in the movement to enlist housewives in the furtherance of humanity's cause.

T. E. Moss, executive secretary in the office of the State Food Administrator, states that the first consignment of pledge cards, kitchen cards and window cards have arrived—300,000 of each kind—and these will be distributed among the various county workers without delay. Mr. Moss is confident, he says, that at least 75 per cent. of the 550,000 families (estimated) residing in Kentucky will sign the pledge cards.

Louisville Busy.

Building operations in Louisville during the fiscal year ending September 1 are estimated at $2,237,410, a total of 1,575 permits being issued. This is a decrease compared with last year, but the report does not include the $6,000,000 piece of construction at Camp Zachary Taylor.

Primitive Decorations.

Townsend, an early Western traveler, tells that one day he met about a hundred Indians of the Sac tribe. They were dressed and decorated in the true primitive style, their heads shaved closely, and painted with alternate stripes of fiery red and deep black, leaving only the long scarping tuft, in which was interwoven a quantity of elk hair and eagle's feathers. Each man was furnished with a good blanket, and some had an underdress of calico, but the greater number were entirely naked to the waist. The faces and bodies of the men were, almost without an exception, fantastically painted, the predominant color being deep red, with occasionally a few stripes of dull clay white around the eyes and mouth. . . . The squares of which there were about twenty, were dressed very much like the men, and at a little distance could hardly be distinguished from them. Among them was an old, superannuated crow, who, soon after her arrival, had been presented with a broken umbrella. The only use that she made of it was to wrench the plated ends from the whalebones, string them on a piece of wire, take her knife from her belt, with which she deliberately cut a slit of an inch in length along the upper rim of her ear, and insert them in it. —Youth's Companion.

Prefer Dynamite to Sugar.

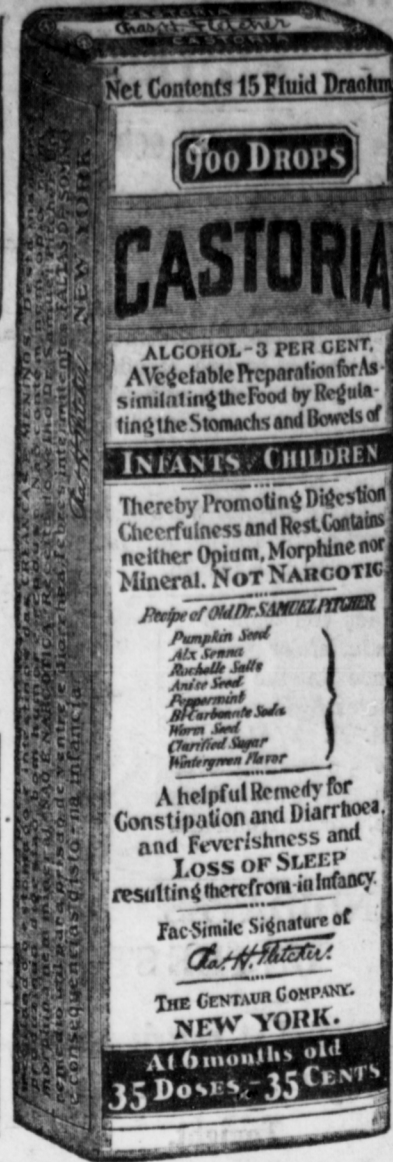

At first sight it would seem that dynamite was a cargo to be carefully avoided. But from a sailor's point of view there are far more dangerous loads. He dreads for instance, a cargo of cane sugar in casks in the hold of a vessel and let the ship steam through a bale of hot weather. The odor is sickening. The sailors cannot get the sweet taste out of their mouths and crave vinegar or lemon juice—anything sour. They lose their appetites and are always glad when a voyage on which the cargo is sugar is over. Coffee is as disagreeable as sugar in addition being very dangerous.

THE GENTLE CYNIC

The sure things demonstrate the uncertainties of life.

The man who preaches that nothing is impossible would even eat an onion and try to lie out of it.

About the only time you can really size up a man is when he thinks no one is watching him.

Don't jump at conclusions. Many a man has sustained a compound fracture of the reputation that way.

JUST FACTS

One-half of all the girls between sixteen and twenty years of age in New York state work for wages.

Citric, tartaric and sulphuric acids are to be manufactured at Messina, Sicily. Sicilian fruit growers are financing the venture.

Oil pressed from copra, the dried meat of coconuts, is rapidly replacing animal fats in the manufacture of artificial butters in Europe.

A school of aviation will be established in Lima, Peru. The government has passed a law providing for an annual appropriation of $24,335 for its maintenance.

A company of Japanese capitalists has started a plan to manufacture egg products at Tsingtau, China. Sales will be made almost exclusively to the American market.

Swiss dairy cattle breeders have discontinued the feeding of oil cake to their stock because of the difficulty of obtaining this food, which was formerly imported from France.

An idea of the enormous extent of electrical industries may be gained from the fact that their annual income equals the total annual expenditures of the United States government.

A radio station has been installed by the United States lighthouse service and is in operation at the Cape St. Elias light station, Alaska, now under construction. The call letters are NLQ.

WORLDLY WISDOM

Life is worth living better than most men live it.

Some people appreciate beautiful things, but most people merely care for ornaments.

It is good to be wise, but it is wiser to be good.

Mystery's other and equally enticing name is woman.

Many a man thinks himself a genius because he lives by his wits.

It is well to watch virtue which employs a press agent.

Many lives would be a great deal sweeter if they were not quite so sugary.

If a man is unable to sleep in the morning when he should get up he has insomnia in its worst form.

Be particular about the people who praise you. The hog has a high opinion of his wallow.

FLASHLIGHTS

Unless you are doing your bit your country isn't as strong as it might be.

A woman may call it just a cheap little hat, but it's a clench that her husband could have bought himself four hats for the same money.

The other fellow doesn't cut much figure with us until we have made a mistake that we want someone to share the blame for.

What answer do you make to people who never stay home, when they ask you, who also never get a chance to stay home, why you haven't been around to call on them lately?

The way some of our young folks have been hinking off to get marriage licenses nowadays one would think the papers had never printed a word about the high cost of living.

QUAKER QUIPS

Every man who enlists hopes to be pushed to the front.

Do it now. It's never too early to mend.

In considering your country's need, don't be weak-kneed yourself.

A plain duty is always more attractive after it has been dressed up a bit.

Every man should do his bit, but mighty few are clamoring for two bits worth.

WHERE?

In the field from standing stalks of a variety that has "made good" and become locally adapted.

HOW?

Pick best ears from plants showing best yields in fair competition with neighboring plants. Storm-proof plants with hanging ears give best seed. Long ears with large, uniform kernels are the best. Avoid sappy ears heavy with water.

WHEN?

As soon as ears are ripe and hard--before heavy frosts or autumn rains injure the kernels for seed. The day the ears are selected they should be hung where they will become thoroughly dry in a few days.

WHY?

It pays. Field selection of seed corn is one of the surest and best paying operations on the farm. Proper care of seed corn pays well. Tests show that properly cared for seed corn has yielded eighteen bushels more per acre than crib-stored seed from the same field.

The Schoolgirl's Mind.

The mind of a schoolgirl does not proceed like the mind of an adult; it imitates the motions of a grasshopper. It sings in the summer, it dances in the winter, it transforms values, it doubts axioms, it is dogmatic upon impossibilities or what seem such to the adult mind, it compresses dreams into a creed, it has intuitions like the flash of an electric candle, or it plays the bat, shuts its eyes tight in broad daylight, folds its wings, hooks on to any convenient excuse, and goes fast asleep.—H. Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

Pure Gold

By Elizabeth Schoen Cobb

(Copyright, 1917, by W. G. Chapman.)

"The royal lap of luxury, and fed on the fat of the land!" Seth Dockrill would state, with a complacent smack of the lips, gloating over a fond reminiscence.

"Now, husks and hominy!" he would add, sorrowfully, but instantly would brighten up and add, with an expression of reverence and affection upon his furrowed face, "and Allie!"

He designated Allie Bruce, his step-niece, orphaned, poor, abandoned by friends, like himself. And then old Seth would expatiate upon the virtues of this paragon of all devoted, unselfish maidens, bravely, loyally steering the frail bark of destiny for both.

This had happened: Uncle Seth, after years of roving, had returned to his native village, according to the local paper, fabulously rich. When this hint of opulence was simmered down to a practical basis its essence proved purely prospective. It appeared that Seth had bought a gold mine in Arizona with the earnings and savings of years. He had come East to secure financial co-operation in developing it. He had a few thousand dollars in liquid funds as a nucleus for future operations.

There were three families in Benton to whom he was kin. They had forgotten him for years, they had ever referred to him indifferently as the shiftless rover. Ah! how changed, or rather how affectedly changed, were their sentiments now that rumor had it that Uncle Seth was rolling in wealth.

He was a reckless, whole-hearted soul and he heaped up gifts for his many pensioners. Each one, down to the babies, had some kind of a trinket set with one of the nuggets discovered in his mine, a small bagful of which he had brought East as samples. He was feasted, toasted, petted, each one of the three families vied with one another in outdoing in hospitality. Then came the disillusion.

Seth had gone to the city and had interested capital. That is, a brokerage house had agreed to furnish machinery for the mine and build a connecting railroad link across it, provided investigation verified his representation. One fatal word closed this exploitation and shattered all of the hopes of the chrysalis Croesus.

That word was "Salted!" Seth had been "housed." Some real nuggets scattered here and there among the carboniferous veins, and the mining sharks had impoverished gulleless, glib old Uncle Seth.

Soon the truth came out. Instead of warm roasts among his dotting relatives, Seth began to receive cold shoulders. One by one his former time-serving friends began to edge away from him. Only one remained true—Allie, the slave of the family, where she was barely tolerated because she was a child of toil.

"I've got a thousand dollars left," Seth told her, "and I've learned my lesson. I want to adopt you, Allie, and I'm good for years of work yet. We may not live very luxuriously, but we'll be happy, eh, little girl?"

"Yes, surely that, dear Uncle," responded Allie, with her sunshiny ways and tender smile. "I'm a famous housekeeper and I'll try to make you comfortable."

Uncle Seth was brisk, original and tireless. He rented a neat little cottage with a patch of land around it and started in to raising medicinal herbs on contract for a city chemical house. The plants required extreme care, but the promised returns at the end of the season were large.

One afternoon Allie, gazing down the road looking for the return of her uncle from the village, was startled and terrified to discover him hanging limp and helpless in the arms of a young man she had never seen before. She ran out to him, pale and trem-

"Oh! what has happened?" she palpitated; but her uncle, though winching with pain and white as a sheet, tried to smile.

"Just a broken leg, dear," he said. "I fell through the old bridge. It's lucky this young man was near, for I couldn't stir and was nigh to the point of fainting."

"We must get him into the house and I will run for a doctor, if you will tell me where to find one," spoke the young man. His tones were clear, they had a ring of genuine sincerity and somewhat reassured Allie.

It was hours later before Uncle Seth, advised by the doctor that weary months of idleness were before him and that he would never walk without a crutch again, had time to thank this stalwart young fellow who had performed prodigious though silent and undirected helpfulness during the disorder attending the accident. Intuitively, while the doctor was setting the injured leg, the young man seemed to guess out neglected work. He fed the horse, milked the cow, attended to the chickens, weeded the long rows of plants and then came into the kitchen and offered to help Allie prepare the evening meal—all of which she dilated on to her uncle.

"Oh, Uncle, he is so thoughtful, so helpful—a regular miracle man. He looks at a task and it is done."

"My mind is mightily relieved," her uncle told her the next morning. "This young man we kept all night seems just looking for a quiet home. He's bargained to stay with us until the fall crop is in."

"I'm glad," said Allie, frankly. "I like his ways very much. Where does he come from, Uncle?"

"Jail."

"Oh, Uncle!" gasped Allie in a shocked way.

"It's truth, child," declared Uncle Seth, gravely. "His name is Glen Fairchild. He bore the brunt of a thieving political crowd in the city, whose tool he was, and is just a week out of prison. He didn't sulk there, he says. He took his medicine and did the tasks expected of him and studied nights. Besides he's acquired a wonderful smattering of information—law, medicine, science. He's truthful and square as a die and he's learned his lesson in politics, just as I did in gold mines."

"If Mr. Fairchild had been in jail all of his life I would trust him and like him," Allie told her uncle a month later. "Oh, he is so intelligent! He has got things working on a system that makes my head dizzy, and so kind and entertaining and true, Uncle. Oh! true blue all the way through."

Glen Fairchild lingered at the pleasant little home long after the crop was in and had been delivered and paid for at a splendid profit. He had got interested in old Seth's story of his mine investment.

"See here," he said one day, "give me a power of attorney and let me go out to Arizona and see if there isn't some saving clause in the middle."

"Oh, Uncle!" cried Allie, six weeks later, coming into his room, a fluttering telegram in her hand. "Read! read! No, I'm so excited I'll read it to you," and she did, as follows:

"Wire quick. District gone copper crazy. Your claim rich with it. Am offered fifty thousand. Will you work it or sell it?"

"Sell," went the vivid response over the wire an hour later.

"The miracle man, indeed!" said Allie, and her eyes were fixed wistfully upon the landscape, as she realized how greatly she had missed Glen Fairchild during his absence.

"Thank you, but I don't go junketing around much with my lame leg," Uncle Seth politely but pointedly observed to one of the old-time relatives who had heard of his new accession of fortune and had invited him to a family dinner. "Besides, Allie and I are engrossed just now over some wedding preparations down at our house. That will make a new relative, Glen Fairchild, and of course we feel like giving him special attention just now."

Remarkable Mirage Seen at Dairen.

A mirage was witnessed at Dairen, formerly the Russian "dream city" of Dalny, on the Liaotung peninsula. The vision appeared upon the side of the bay and was discovered by the pursuer of the Shanghai liner Sakaki Maru, while coming into port. Looking northward, he saw vast structures upon the side of the bay, where he knew no such buildings existed. A crowd assembled, and the vision was promptly declared to be a mirage—one of the most remarkable ever seen in the far East. It originally appeared to be three buildings, six stories high. This disappeared and then a whole city rose out of the waters of the bay—a great city with a tall church tower in the middle ground. The tiles upon the church roof were plainly discernible. At the right of the picture stone walls of a large roofless structure, blackened by a destructive fire, were visible. No such aerial images have been seen before at Dairen, and superstitious citizens are variously commenting thereon.—East and West News.

Growth of British Debt.

During the year ending March 31, next, $8,200,000,000 will be added to the gross debt of the British government, according to an estimate by the London Statist. If this estimate proves accurate the gross debt will then stand at $27,530,000,000. Of this sum, however, $7,150,000,000 will represent loans to British allies and dominions leaving a net debt of $20,380,000,000. At the close of the fiscal year ending March 31, 1914, the debt totaled $3,256,000,000, so that the war will have added $17,124,000,000 to the net debt if hostilities should continue until Mountains of Salmon.

The Skenna river boasts a great number of salmon canneries, and, next to the Fraser, is probably the largest center of this industry in British Columbia. On occasions when the fishing fleet comes in with a big catch, as many as 20,000 to 30,000 large salmon may be seen at one time in a rainbow-hued pile of sparkling beauty.

Columbus and Friday.
It is said that on Friday Columbus set out from Spain to seek a new world. On Friday he first caught sight of land. On Friday he started on his return voyage. On Friday he safely arrived back in Spain. On Friday he first sighted the American mainland on his next voyage. On Friday he first set his foot upon it, and again on Friday he landed in his native land.

COMMAND "WENT" FOR BOTH

Indiana Woman's Sharp Order Scared Junkman as Well as Dog That Was Digging Up Garden.

There is a woman in Irvington who is certainly in bad with a junk man, all on account of a dog. It was not her dog, nor yet the junk man's, which makes the case sadder than ever. The dog belongs to a neighbor, and must be the reincarnation of Captain Kidd or some other pirate, for his whole existence seems to be spent in seeking for buried treasure. As pirate treasure was always buried in the most unlikely places, that is where he digs. Nobody but a pirate or a dog would look for treasure very far below the surface of an onion bed, for instance, but the digging that dog did made the Irvington woman's onion bed look like a model of the Hindenburg line just after it was broken. The dog was "sedulously engaged in his terrestrial explorations," as they would say it in Irvington, when the woman saw him from the window. Rushing to the door, she shrieked, "Get out of here!" at the top of what is naturally a soft and cooing voice. Instead of one scramble there were two, and a junk man, until then unnoticed, passed through the open back gate just half a jump ahead of the dog, both going strong. It was more than a minute before the voice of the junk man was heard in the siren song, "Ra-a-ag-sol-l-?-diron," and even at the distance it betrayed a decided tremolo. — Indianapolis News.

PUBLIC ROADS

ROADS REDUCE LIVING COST

Make for Prosperity More Than Any Other National Undertaking, Says Alaskan Engineer.

"Good roads, more than any other national undertaking, make for the prosperity, happiness and contentment of the people," declared Col. W. P. Richardson, engineer in charge of highways in Alaska. "This is particularly evident at this time, when in every large city there is protest against the high prices of food. In my judgment, good roads, more than any other agency, will help to solve permanently the high cost of living. Transportation, of course, is at the foundation of prices. It is truthfully said that where there is inadequate transportation food prices mount high. We know that in cities prices are greatly in excess of those in rural districts and it is all a matter of transportation and distribution. If we have good roads, we can get our products to market. If we haven't, we cannot. Products on the farm are worth nothing if they cannot find a market. I am convinced that the most important governmental work is in the improvement of the roads. In this day of motor trucks it is much easier to haul products to the cities or to railroad terminals than it was a few years ago, but we must have good roads to do it. There is not the slightest doubt that good roads many times over pay for themselves. They are a fundamental economic necessity.

The initial outlay in the building of good roads may seem large, but it is small in comparison with the benefits that accrue. In Alaska we have approximately 900 miles of improved roads, varying from the ordinary country dirt road to the best kind of macadam. In Nome there is a stretch of road over which in the summer time thousands of tons of products are hauled.

POOR ROADS ARE EXPENSIVE

Mistaken Idea That Improved Highways Are Solely for Benefit of Automobile Owners.

Poor roads are very expensive things for country communities. The farmer who thinks that improved highways are mainly for the benefit of those who drive automobiles should reflect on the results of a recent investigation by the department of agriculture, which finds that the cost of hauling farm produce over ordinary country roads is 23 cents a ton mile, whereas over hard-surfaced roads it is only 13 cents. —Youth's Companion.

OPERATION OF A ROAD DRAG

Use Pookiest, Laziest Kind of Team and Let Them Have Their Own Time—Just Keep Moving.

Do not wait for anything; build a drag and get out onto the road.

Drive very slowly. Use the pookiest, laziest team you own, and give them their time. Just so they keep moving they will be going swiftly enough. After you have used the drag a year, and have learned when to drive rapidly and when to drive slowly, you can carry a whip or drive a mettlesome team.

Vetch as Cover Crop.

An expert says that winter vetch does best as a cover crop if a little rye is seeded with it. One bushel of vetch to one-half bushel of rye per acre is about right.

Bad Habit of Cow.

Once a cow finds out she can get over an old fence there will be trouble perhaps for all time.

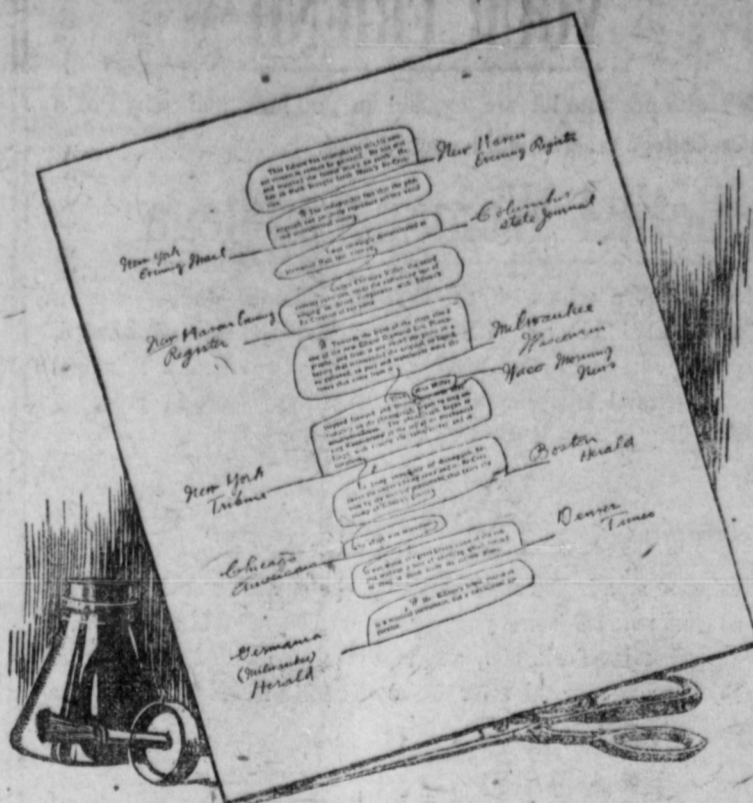

Rats Are Expensive.

Fifty rats on a farm will cost the owner $100 to $200 a year.

Farmers Are Reported.

From 50,000 to 75,000 bushels of wheat are being held in large lots by farmers in the near vicinity of Evansville, according to reports J. C. Wallenmeyer has made to H. C. Barnard, state food commissioner, at Indianapolis. Seventy-five farmers and speculators living in the vicinity of Cynthiana, New Harmony, Stewartsville and Armstrong have been reported to the government as violators of the Lever food law, which prohibits the hoarding of wheat for speculative purposes, according to Mr. Wallenmeyer.

In most cases the farmers frankly admitted holding for higher prices. In some cases they pleaded rush of work on the farms as an excuse for not marketing.—Courier.

STUDY CIRCUS METHODS

Uncle Sam's Officials Observe
System of Carl Hagenbeck-
Wallace Show.

Beneath the pomp and glitter and amidst the odor of sawdust and naphtha is a system of government and management whose scope and scale are stupendous and staggering. No human institution is more perfect in operation than the circus. Surely no more flattering tribute could be paid the Carl Hagenbeck-Wallace circus than that officially given by the United States Government. Officers from the army department, veterans in their profession, carefully observed the rapid sequence of proceedings when the big show was in Washington.

The naval officers were in the railroad yards to watch the arrival of the trains, the process of debarkation, and on the show grounds they marveled at the manner in which the monster Aladdin-like palaces were raised in the air. They critically observed the manner in which the two-mile-long street parade was lined up. They marveled at the haste and precision in which hundreds of their employees hastened about their work. Gen. Evans surveyed the marvelous scene and he was dumbfounded. He asked for permission to allow several members of his staff to travel with the show a fortnight that they might grasp a few of the advanced ideas as to how so great an institution is moved with apparently so little effort. Gen. Evans confessed that the army department had always loaded their wagons on flat cars by hoisting them over the sides, not rolling them on from the end.

The Carl Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus is the most wonderful tented organization in the world. In reality there are two separate shows, Carl Hagenbeck's collection of trained animals and the Great Wallace Circus. Several years ago the two shows were combined, yet one ticket admits to everything. The Carl Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus will come to Hopkinsville, on Wednesday, Oct. 17, for performances at 2 and 8 p. m. The monster, all new street pageant will leave the grounds at 10 o'clock on the day of exhibition.

FROST CAME LITTLE EARLY

Was Due About Oct. 15th,
Under Average
Conditions.

The first really killing frost was reported Tuesday morning. It nipped but did not entirely kill tender vegetation. Yesterday morning it was a little warmer and another milder spell was indicated. Practically all tobacco had been cut and there is now but little damage to be done by frost which usually comes by Oct. 15. It was only a few days early.

Congressmen will have a vacation of less than two months. Dave Kincheloe has stuck to his job and voted right every time.

Banner Corn Crop.

Despite an estimate loss of 37,000 bushels during September, the country's corn crop still will be the greatest in its history. Latest figures issued by the Department of Agriculture show the crop will be 3,210,700 bushels, and also that despite estimate loss of 9,000,000 bush during the month the spring wheat crop will exceed last year's. Other crops approach bumper records.

Two Italians Killed.

An American patrol vessel, on duty at night in the war zone, fired on an Italian submarine, which had failed to answer recognition signals, killing one officer and one enlisted man. Vice Admiral Sims cabled the Navy Department. Secretary Daniels at once sent a message to the Italian Ministry of War expressing the deepest regret over the unfortunate occurrence.
